

New cabinet marks opportunity to reset Canada's approach to energy

May 13, 2025 – Enserva issued the following statement following the announcement of the federal cabinet:

“On behalf of Enserva, I congratulate Prime Minister Mark Carney and his newly appointed cabinet. As the voice of Canada's energy service, supply, and manufacturing sector, we look forward to engaging with the federal government on policies that enable Canada's energy sector to thrive.

The Liberal Party's campaign commitment to make Canada “the world's leading energy superpower” sends an important signal. Fulfilling that promise will require a clear focus on energy security, job creation, and the advancement of nation-building projects that benefit communities across the country.

Canada has what the world needs—abundant, responsibly developed energy. But to realize our full potential, we need regulatory and policy frameworks that attract investment, support innovation, and remove barriers to growth.

We're hopeful that this new chapter in leadership brings a renewed tone and approach—one that recognizes energy as central to our economic strength, trade ambitions, and role on the global stage. Enserva's members are ready to get to work, delivering the infrastructure, services, and skilled workforce Canada needs to lead.”
